Nymboida Project

Updated: 11/11/2009

Status: In Production

Category: Documentary

Teaser: In 1975 30 miners at the tough and remote Nymboida Colliery in NSW staged a work in to protect their jobs and entitlements when the mine owner issued a notice of closure.

Synopsis: These 30 miners and their Union took over the lease and successfully ran the mine for four and a half years. This is a remarkable and unique story, which lead to the Miners Federation becoming the only Union in Australian and international history to take control of a mine. Following Nymboida's closure the Union was granted another lease in the Hunter Valley called United Colliery. A major outcome of the Union's involvement with United was the formation of the Mine Workers Trust, a foundation which has put millions back into communities through NSW.
